TRANSMISSION OF MONEY BY MAIL. - Under the provisions of the new postage law that will go into effect on the first of July, persons who have occasion to remit money or other valuable things by mail may have the same registered at the post-office in which they are placed for transmission, by paying five cents for each letter. For this the postmaster will give a receipt, and, when the letter is applied for, the person no receives it will also be required to receipt for it. Registered letters will not be entered in the ordinary accounts of mails sent and received, but separate accounts of such letters will be kept at each post-office. This plan is well enough so far as it goes, but does not go far enough; it involves an admission that a better plan is necessary. Under this regulation a correct description of the letter is made at the office where it is deposited; the receipt is evidence that it was mailed, and, if it arrives at the office to which it is directed, it will very likely be delivered. But suppose it is lost or stolen on the route. What then? The Government does not become liable for it. Under the new system these money-letters are more than usually liable to be stolen, because it will be generally known that only those letters and packages which are addressed to postmasters contain money, and that if these are secured all that is valuable in the mail has been obtained.

What is needed to meet the wants of the people is a system that can be safely and certainly relied on to remit money from point to point. The plan in question does not appear to us to be of that elected for the ensuing year: character. There is more risk about it than under the present system, for now a dishonest Presbytery, Moderator. clerk must steal a whole mail to be certain of finding letters containing money, whereas under the new plan the valuable letters are separated from the ordinary ones by the Department itself, and it will only be necessary to steal a single package to obtain a haul. In view of these ts we ought to have a money-order system similar to the one in operation in Great Britain. Then there would be no chance for losing any thing. There the Government takes the risk; of February for colleges. and if any thing be lost, and it is next to impossible that this should occur, the Government stands the loss. So it should be in this country. The Government here should charge a sufficient sum for the conveyance of valuable letters to secure their conveyance and delivery; or in case of loss it should indemnify the loser.

The post-office is a great institution of civilized society, and the fact that in its inception it was restricted to the conveyance of letters is no good reason why its use shall not be extended. and its machinery made to answer for other agencies. Among these we reckon the safe agencies. Among these we reckon the sare transmission of money. In England this has been done to a limited extent, and we desire to see the plan introduced into this country on a see the plan introduced into the see that the see tha more extended scale.

We have but little confidence in or regard for this registration plan, which is shortly to be inaugurated. Its effect will be to make people pay additional postage without obtaining increased security.

The Indianapolis Journal is a highly intelligent paper, and we are disposed to believe that means to be patriotic. We wish to put to it hain question or two. Supposing that the fugitive slave law remains unrepealed, and sup-posing the Supreme C urt of the United States decides the law to be constitutional, can a State, through her local judiciary or otherwise rightfully annul it? Would not the resistance of a State to a law of the United States, pronounced consitutional by the Supreme Court of the United States, be resistance to the whole theory of the United States Government—tending to rebellion?-Louisville Journal.

We put these questions to the Indianapolis Journal several days ago. We do not think that it has answered them. Perhaps it has overlooked them. Being anxious to understand its views, we repeat them. We are sincerely desirous of knowing whether the ablest and most respectable of the Freesoil journals of the nonslaveholding States are or are not in favor of State resistance to the fugitive slave law in spite of any decision of the Supreme Court of the U. States in favor of its constitutionality. Do the Freesoil journals believe in the right of a State to nullify a U. S. law, pronounced constitutional by the highest judicial authority of the repub- this morning.

MEMPHIS AND LITTLE ROCK RAILROAD .-So far as the vote of Pulaski county, in which Little Rock is situated, has been received, it is more than five to one in favor of authorizing the county court to subscribe $100,000 in the Memphis and Little Rock railroad. The fire on Saturday evening partially umed an old two-story frame house on Green street, above Fifth. It was not occupied and the fire was probably the work of an incendiary. Loss small.

We do not know but our sweet songbirds sing the most bewitchingly when they pour forth their melodies to each other:

[For the Louisville Bulletin.] TO MINNIE.

BY MARY P --- .
Suggested by her beautiful lines, "Music of Earth." There's a richer, loftier music, Thou sweet-tongued, warbling bird,

Than childhood sailvery laughter
In perfnmed forests heard,
Than affection's tenderest marmur,
Than "the sacred bridsl hymn," Or the dirge for loved and lost ones,

Sung in the twilight dim.

These wake the dearest echoes
From the spirit's deep recess, But this bright earth, mnsic-hannted, Doth a sweeter strain possess. From thy poet-heart there gushes A sparkling, singing stream, Bearing jewels on its enrrent Bright as visions of a dream; All this world's divinestechoes

To its sweet-toned waves belong, And our hearts devoutly worship The sweet witchery of its song; It unsealeth all the fountains Of the melodies of earth, And to memory's holiest musle Its dear image gives new birth.

Far in the dim old woodlands Nature's full-strung harp resounds, The will-bird's amorous warbling Like incense all surrounds; The babbling of the brooklets, The insect's droning hum, The wandering herd's soft lowing, The pheasants hollow drum, The breezy, dewy rustle
Of the green leaves overhead— All past and present melody Thy song doth o'er us shed.

But there's one rich, holy masie On this sin-stained planet rung-I wonder, gtorions birdling,
Thou its rhythm hast not sung:
It is heard when, humbly kneeling In the fane on God's own day, With united hearts, the people
Lift their voices up to pray;
Through the aisles it softly breatheth,
While the angels pause to hear. And to whisper it in Heaven In the Savionr's waiting ear

The General Assembly of the Presbytenan Church met at St. Louis on Thursday. At the opening of the session about one hundred and twenty commissioners were present, to which the arrivals during the day brought large accessions.

Rev. Dr. Skinner, the moderator, delivered an eloquent sermon. The following officers were

Rev. Wm. C. Wisner, D. D., of the Niagara

Rev. E. F. Hatfield, D. D., Stated Clerk. Rev. Henry Darling, Permanent Clerk.

Rev. Ova P. Hoyt, Temporary Clerk. It was resolved to elect no Trustees nor Directors to the Princeton and other theological HORTICULTURAL EXHIBITION.—The second horticultural exhibition of the season took place on Saturday morning. This is a very suitable plan, and does not interfere in the least with the business of the Exchange, as 'change hour does not commence till half past one. We are requested to invite all the ladies especially to attend the exhibition. Among the articles on Saturday we notice very beautiful flowers, by Mrs. Austin Peay, Miss Amelia Hite, Mrs. E. Peters, A. M. D. Robardson, Ormsby Hite, C. it will be all made. T. Duncan, and Hobbs & Walker. Mr. Thatcher exhibited bassom beets.

A PRIZE FIGHT FRUSTRATED .- Yesterday morning a large number of skiffs were observed plying to and from Corn Island and carrying over large numbers of men. By 10 o'clock several hundred had assembled. The occasion for this, we understand, was a prize fight which was agreed upon the preceding day between two Irishmen. The friends of the parties had made up $200, which the victor was to receive. Several policemen went over, and, owing to their appearance on the ground, the fight did not come off and the crowd dispersed.

Late advices from Havana state that the organization, arming, and drilling of the colored population in Cuba still continues. The Yucatan Indians continue to be introduced into Cuba with the consent of the Mexican authorities. Nearly 200 of them were landed at Havana on the 11th from a Spanish vessel and sold under contract made previous to their arrival.

The coroner was summoned late yesterday evening to hold an inquest upon the body of a man found in the river below the mouth of the canal. He went directly to the spot but found it impossble to get a jury and was therefore compelled to postpone the inquisition till

THE NAVAL APPRENTICE SYSTEM. - The Washington Union of Tuesday has the follow-

There is a very general, as well as a very er roneous, impression prevailing relative to workings of the apprentice system, just intro-duced into the service by Secretary Dobbin. The system, after mature deliberation, has been adopted, not with a view of furnishing the right kind of material for lieutenants, captains, and commodores, but to effect a radical and permanent improvement in the character of the sea-men in the employ of the government. Naval apprentices are not in the line of promotion. They may by good conduct be advanced to the grade of a petty officer, but beyond that grade they cannot advance.

The mild gentlemen of the Times say that we are "an Abolitionist," and that the preachers in Louisville, with very few exceptions, "can rob money-drawers as well as the most patriotic Know-Nothing in the land." We can bear our part if the clergy can theirs.

THE LIQUOR LAW .- The Boston Courier has the following:

We understand that the importers and venders of wines and spirits, the proprietors of hotels, and other persons interested, have not been at all inactive since the passage of this law, which they justly regard as unconstitutional and illegal, as an invasion of their rights of property and rights of trade, and that they have secured competent counsel for all cases which may arise under its provisions, and will finally test the question before the Supreme Court of the United States.

The Boston (Maine Law) Telegraph says it has no doubt but the liquor-dealers have resolved to defend themselves against prosecutions, and adds:

An attempt will be made to enforce the law in Boston; it may be violently resisted, but we do not believe it. There are good citizens enough in this city who are determined to stand by the authorities and all others who may assist in this humane work.

The subjoined letter from the president of the Rutland and Burlington, and Cheshire Railroad Companies, has been received by Geo. H. Thatcher, Esq., president of the Albany Northern Railroad:

Boston, May 14, 1855.

The liquor law of Massachusetts goes into operation on the 20th of the present month. The law is very rigid; therefore, on and after the 20th day of the present month we must decline receving any great or small beer, alcohol, or liquors of any kind.

The river was about at a stand yesterday, with 51 feet water in the canal, and 3 feet 4 inches water on the falls. A rise is expected. Weather pleasant.

The St. Louis Republican of Friday says: The Mississippi rose about 6 inches at this point yesterday, and is reported at 10 feet to Cairo. The Upper Mississippi, by the last arrivals, is reported falling very slowly. We have intelligence of no change in the Missouri. The arrivals yesterday reported it at the same old standing point—3½ feet in the channel. The IIlinois is in a good stage—falling from Lasalle to Peoria, and at a stand thence to the mouth. The late rains must cause a swell in all the upper river, as the Upper Mississippi, Missouri and Illinois river boats all report heavy rains on those rivers, though they have not yet been materially affected by them. Rains have been general through the Upper Missouri, Iowa and Northern Illinois.

From Texas.—The papers are rejoicing over some copious showers of rain, with which, after a long drought, several parts of Texas has been

The Galveston authorities have closed the grog shops on Sundays.

The Galveston News, is informed that Sea Island cotton is successfully cultivated in several parts of the State, and that there is a general disposition at various places, from Gonzales to that port, to go into the cultivation of this discription of cotton. Not less than one thousand acres, the News is informed, will this year be cultivated in this cotton in Western Texas.

SECOND CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT .- There are two Anti-American candidates for Congress in this district-Trabue and Peyton. The Owensboro Gazette says:

Bad News from the Sault .- Under this head, the Detroit Advertiser mentions the arrival of the steamer Northerner from the Sault, with the intelligence that the water was let into the canal few days ago, when, owing to the frost not yet being out of the ground or some other cause, the embankments gave way, making a bad breach, which will probably take four weeks to repair, and it is doubtful whether boats will be able to pass in less than six weeks.

Mr. Manager Barnum yesterday paid the penalty of the possession of wealth by being brought before a court on a false charge of crim. con. Henderson Reporter. Forgeries -Rumors of two forgeries, said to have been perpetrated in this city recently, are rife about town. In one case, a young man most respectably connected, is said to have forged the name of a gentlemen, as endorser to a note for $1400, which he negotiated. In the other case, it is said that a silent partner in a mercantile house, who has an interest in the business for his services, and is not entitled to sign the name of the firm, did sign it to a very amount for gambling and other individual debts acquired by himself. We understand that in both instances the matter has been hushed up by the interference of friends.

SANTIAGO SACKED BY ROBBERS .- By the arrival of the clipper schooner Simeon Draper from Mazatlan, which vessel arrived on the 15th of April, we learn that the country is in a state of rebellion and completely overrun with robbers; and it is almost impossible for any person to travel by land without being molested. Santiago had been sacked by a band of robbers, and it was reported that some of the inhabitants had been murdered and the females carried off. This band of marauders proceeded up the river to a village and committed the same depredations. A body of the citizens followed and overtook them; a fight ensued, which resulted in the defeat of the pursuing party, who were compelled to surrender, being promised that their lives should be spared by so doing; but, after laying down their arms, they were all killed with the exception of one man, who escaped. TECTION FOR THE INDUSTRY OF THE PEOPLE WHO LIVE IN AMERICA .- The tone and temper of the times are favorable to the full development of American nationality, not only as respects the purely political privileges of the people but also as regards their industrial interests. The great object of civil society is the promotion of the happiness and prosperity of its members; and to the complete development of these conditions it is necessary not only to secure the enjoyment of perfect political rights, but also to provide the most ample and effective dering remunerative, the industry of the people that compose the community. American labor must be protected as well as American privileges; the one is scarcely less important than the other. Heretofore this country has been kept poor by the immense drain that has been made from our resources to pay for the fabrics produced by the labor of the people who live in other countries. This should not be so if it can be avoided; we ought to free ourselves from so degrading and disastrous a dependence on foreign countries. If we have not the men skilled in the business of manufacturing the fine fabrics that we require, let us rather encourage the workmen to migrate hither and produce these manufactures on our own soil than send abroad for them. We can, if we will really and heartily make the effort, succeed in producing most or all of the articles that we need for our use. Why should our people go to England or any where else for iron, when it exists everywhere around us in exhaustless quantities? This country possesses all the elements of national independence, not only in a political sense, but also as concerns industrial pursuits. Nevertheless, we have been in the habit of importing foreign fabrics to the extent of millions every year, not only to the disadvantage of our own workshops, but to the disturbance of our monetary system. In the single article of cotton fabrics, an immense sum is sent abroad, that might be kept at home.

The doctrine of the friends of the American system is, that we should protect our infant establishments against two important features of European competition; namely, pauper labor in the first place, and the experience of many years in the second. If it were impossible for us to produce the goods that are brought to such a vast extent from the other side of the Atlantic, there would be some reason in the doctrine of free trade. But we possess the raw material, the tact, and the industry, and we could compete at any time, but for the two causes alluded to.

SCARCITY AND HIGH PRICE OF BEEF CAT-TLE .- We see by the report of the cattle market in New York city, for the week ending the 2d inst., that the whole number of beeves sold 2d inst., that the whole number of beeves sold At this moment a tall, fair young man, who also during that period amounted to 1,371 head, at appeared to be a superior officer, joined the conprices ranging from 11 to 15 cents per pound for the quarters, by estimation. A large number sold for upwards of $100 each, and one whole lot brought $140 a head. The average price of the whole number sold was $87 50

In addition to these, there were in market 427 veals. Those worthy to pear that name brought from 4 to 7 cents per pound. Under the head of veals, there is a class called "kittens" -- that is, calves from one to six days old, which sell at from $1 25 to $3 and $4 each.

Beef cattle are constantly becoming more scarce and the price is advancing. In our own market, beef has also advanced nearly 100 per to your cost, when he comes to avenge himself cent. within a short period, and, unless some on you. plan be adopted in the West to keep up a supply of cattle, the price will soon be such that none but the rich can afford to buy it.

We are already importing eggs from France. Messrs. Miller, Having, & Co., of New York, received last week from Havre a thousand dozen of hens' eggs. Shall we next import beef from Great Britain?

With immense tracts of rich Western lands. which may readily be brought to yield abundant pasturage and hay, it would seem that, with ordinary industry and foresight in the preservation and economy of winter food and with due regard to the shelter and comfort of animals, a supply of beef cattle might be kept up, yielding as rich returns to the farmer and with as little labor as any other branch to which he could turn his attention.

New York is not the only market in which New York is not the only market in which of her. A chase began, when the steamer "kittens" may be seen. A large number of Vixen, the consort of the Albany, hove in sight veal calves are daily sacrificed to supply Louisville and other Western markets, which, with the facilities at the command of the farmers generally, might easily be converted into fullgrown beeves. Will the Western farmers consider these facts and profit by them?

The distinguished actress Miss Eliza Logan, who has no superior in the United States, is playing a most successful engagement in Philadelphia. She attracts large crowds, and the papers of that city speak of her in the most exalted terms. We see in the Pennsylvanian a beautiful poem from her pen. She is a woman of genius-a poetess as well as an actress.

A pleasant practice is growing fashionable at Albany. The Argus represents the ton now-adays, instead of riding up the Troy road before breakfast, as taking a ride on the Hudson up to Troy or down the river to Duow's point. The cost of chartering one of the small steamers is cost of chartering one of the small steamers is but a trifle more than to hire a horse and buggy. Every pleasant morning, parties may be seen wending their way to the pier, and there taking one of the small steamers for an hour's pleasur on the water. Quite a novel idea to take a ride on a steamboat before breakfast, isn't it?

As i lustrative of the universality of musical As instance of the universality of musical taste and perfection in Italy, an American there writes: "It seems a little strange to hear one of those fine operatic airs which our young ladies scream at for a long time, and then never learn, whistled "first-rate" by a little, ragged, smutty-faced, capless boy in the street. Everybody here seems chuck-full of music."

The Louisville Journal, it is somewhat remarkable, contains a large quantity of original poetry that is really good—much better than we can find in any of the papers or magazines of the day. Somehow or other Mr. Prentice has attached to his columns an array of poetical talent that any editor would be proud of. But how he succeeded in getting so many of the sweet singers to write for the Journal, we never could understand. It is not on account of his good looks, for we'll bet a dozen bottles of pop that he is the ugliest editor in Kentucky, yet all the lady poets of Kentucky, like so many birds of paradise, are continually fluttering around the window of his sanctum. - Scioto Valley Republic.

The Scioto paper is mistaken upon two points. In the first place, instead of being the ugliest editor in Kentucky, we are the handsomest, and, means of furnishing employment for, and ren- in the second place, we are not so intospitable as to keep the sweet birds of paradise fluttering around our window-we raise the window and let them in.

> A CONVERSATION AT EUPATORIA. - The Journal de Constantinople contains a letter from Eupatoria, of the 8th, which communicates some interesting details relative to an interview between several Russian and Turkish officers. It says:

Omar Pasha received the account of the death of the Emperor Nicholas on the morning of the 7th, by an Austrian steamer from Varna. On the afternoon of the same day some Russian On cavalry were seen advancing on the right of our camp. Sefir Pasha (Count Koscielski) took two squadrons of Ottoman lancers and went to meet the enemy. The two bodies halted at the same time, when within a certain distance of each other. In the front of the Russian column were four horsemen, who appeared to be officers, although, according the orders given by the Emperor Nicholas, all Russian officers, even generals, are compelled to cover their uniforms with the rough great-coats worn by the private soldier. Sefir Pasha, accompanied by his aid-de-camp, Major Kuczinski, of the Egyptian army, and two other officers, advanced toward

When the two advanced groups were close enough to be heard, Sefir Pasha spoke to the others, and proposed a conversation. The Russians at first appeared to entertain some distrust, but on Sefir Pasha giving his word of honor that no hostile act should take place on his side, the Russians gave a similar assurance, and the two parties advanced until they met. "Gentletwo parties advanced until they met. "Gentle-men," said Sefir Pasha, "I have bad news to give you. The Emperor is dead." "What Emperor do you mean?" "Why, yours—the Emperor Nicholas." "What is the date of this news?" "The second of this month." It is very probable; but it is not certain." "It it so rue, that, when I was at Sebastopol a few days ago, we heard that the Emperor was seriously ill—we shall see." After some other trifling remarks, Sefir Pasha begged to know the name of the officer with whom he had the honor of conversing. "Gen. Prince Radziwill," was the Sefir Pasha was, in turn, asked for his name, which he gave. On hearing it, the general exclaimed, "Well, Pasha, look at the effects of the war! We are now fighting against each other, and three years ago we were dining together at the house of Count Xavier Branicki, at Paris. There we were friends." "Friends!" said Sefir Pasha, "I beg your pardon, general, we were only guests." "Oh, it i about the same thing."

"The poets," he said, "are famous exaggerators. How highly they have extolled the beauty of the climate and the delights of the Crimea, and here we are for months past up to our necks in mud." "Do you imagine, then," replied Sefir Pasha, "that we are revelling in luxuries at Eu-

But in war we must take things as we find them. "By the way," added the Pasha, "who was it that gave Iskender Bey that sabre-cut on the forehead?"

Iskender feels certain that it must have been an officer; for although, from the way you dress, an officer cannot be distinguished from a private, he says he was well mounted?" said Prince Radziwill, "is not Iskender dead?" "No, he is not; and you will find that some day

During the interview, the Ottoman officers had their swords sheathed, but the Russians held theirs drawn, but appeared somewhat ashamed of their mistrust. Sefir Pasha had afterwards another interview the same day with General Radziwill relative to the exchange of prisoners, but we are yet without result.

AN "OUTRAGE" OVERLOOKED .- On the 13th of August, 1851, the sloop-of-war Albany (now lost) was cruising off Cuba, when she hove in sight of a bark and hoisted her colors, thus in-timating that the stranger should do the same. The bark did not answer and the Albany threw a shot ahead of her. There was no response, and several other shots were fired, the last one point blank at the bark but falling short and was at once sent after the refractory bark. On boarding she was found to be an American vessel under command of an obstinate blockhead who made all the fuss to show his independence.

Not a word was said of this being an "out rage;" but three days afterwards occurred the famous "outrage" upon the steamer Falcon while she was on the very shore of Cuba and the island in a fever of excitement about invasion. This "outrage" was merely bringing the vessel to and examining her papers, not firing point blank at her and finally running her down yet the amount of bluster made about it was almost incr dible, and the terrible anxiety about "our national honor" manifested by those patriots whose honor is usually national rather than individual was painful to witness.

N. Y. Jour. of Com. Hard Times in Louisiana .- The fatal effects of this protracted dry season, says the Natchi-toches Chronicle of the 5th instant, are plainly visible in every plantation in our parish, and he most gloomy forebodings as to the This untoward state of things, superjustify the most added to the continued low water, gives to the people of northern Louisiana, or at least the Red river country, the utmost depression of feelings. We speak truly when we say that in portions of this and the adjoining parishes actual destitution prevail want and destitution prevail. Among many door families, there exists a want of the necessaries of life, arising from the suspension of navigation, and consequent scarcity of supplies, while the drought has cut off vegetation to such an extent, that these people are deprived of puch which might afford them relief in these chard times." NEWS ITEMS.

The Galveston News learns "that 4,000 head of cattle were recently sold at administrator's sale, on the Guadalupe, on twelve months' credit, as follows: All beeves, four years old and over, at $15 per head; all three years old and over, at $12 per head; and all under that age, including stock cows and calves, at $7 per

The mate of the schooner Bay City writes a long letter from Rio Janeiro explaining the outrage committed on that vessel by the British brig-of-war Borette. According to his story, the difficulty was occasioned by the obstinacy of Capt. Wardle, of the Bay City, in not showing his colors and heaving to, necessitating the firing of seven or eight guns from the British cruiser to bring the schooner up and satisfy them she was not a Russian privateer.

Hard Times in Texas .- The Henderson Democrat has an article on the "hard times." It says that it cannot hear of a bushel of corn for sale in Rusk county, and that all the necessaries of life are held at enormous prices. Similar complaints reach us from other points. Meal from $1 25 to $2 per bushel. Bacon from 15 to 20 cents per pound, and flour at from $18 to $20 per barrel.

At Chicago nine buildings were burned on Thursday.

Chief Justice Kinney, it is stated, has been appointed Governor of Utah in place of Col. Steptoe, resigned.

The dwelling-house of Daniel Epperson at Frankfort was destroyed by fire on Friday night. No insurance. Furniture saved.

The Jew's Hospital .- The first Jewish hospital in the United States was formally consecrated at New York on Thursday afternoon. For this institution the Hebrews are mainly indebted to the late Judah Touro, whose munificent bequest of $20,000 paid two-thirds of the cost of building and site.

A Ship Flour Mill and Bakery .- The London Morning Chronicle of a late date says that the British ship "Bruiser" has been converted into a complete flour mill, capable of grinding from 700 to 800 bushels of wheat per day—taking the raw material in at one end of the vessel, in the form of wheat, and turning it out at the other in well manufactured flour, without the intervention of manual labor. The machinery is both ingenious and compact, and in moderate weather may be worked without suspending the progress of the vessel, notwithstanding it is all driven by the marine engine. has been fitted up as a large bakery, and is capable of turning out 20,000 lbs. of bread per day with the aid of some very simple machinery. These vessels will be dispatched to the Black Fugitive Slave Case-Almost .- We learn that fugitive from slavery was brought to this city a day or two since from the South, and almost simultaneously a telegraphic dispatch was received from his late master, offering a reward of $500 for his arrest. Some over-zealous individual tried to interest the United States marshal in the case; but it not coming before him in due course of his duty, he would have nothing In the meantime the fugitive wa started for Canada by the underground railroad Boston Journal.

One Fourth of the Harbor of New York in the Market.—A gentleman from the State of Maine is owner in fee of about one and a half miles of the water frontag of the entire halbor, of this great metropolis, namely: Communipaw, opposite the Ba'tery, and running dawn the shore to and including kavan point—having by the law of New Jersey the right to build docks and wharves, so far as not to impede navigation, thus giving 800 acres of flats as well as the upand from which a most magnificent view of this city and Brooklyn, as well as the whole harbor, is to be had. We understand this entire property has remained in the family of the original proprietors for more than one hundred and fifty years, unimproved.—N. Y. News.

There are forty locomotive shops in the United States, ten of which are west of the All-ganies. These works are capable of producing twelve hundred locomotives per annum. About four hundred engines are required yearly to replace the depreciation of existing ones. The other eight hundred are required for new roads and for the increase of business on existing roads-2,000 miles of new road, opened yearly, require about five hundred engines for the first

A CLERGYMAN IN DISTRESS.—For some time past a clergyman, named Elijah or Elisha Wells, has occupied a room at No. 11 Avery street, keeping himself aloof from company as much as possible. Being entirely without means, the landlady applied to the police, and vesterday a landlady applied to the police, and yesterday a permit was obtained from the directors of the House of Industry, and he was sent to Deer island. Last night he was very sick, and this morning Dr. Moriarty expressed the opinion that he would not recover. Mr. Wells is seventy years of age, and states that he has frequently preached for Rev. Dr. Sharp, Rev. Dr. Jenks, and other clergymen in this city.

Boston Journal, May 12.

The Journal of Monday evening, May 14, has the following paragraph:

Death of the Destitute Clergyman .- The report of the destitution of the Rev. Elijah G. Wells which appeared in our paper of last Saturday induced several gentlemen who had known him in his early days to take measures for his relief. Arrangements were made for his admission to the Massachusetts General Hospital, but his death occurred before he could be removed thither.

The New York Herald says:

A California merchant is now in the city with he view to make some arrangement for the receipt of flour and wheat from San Francisco. The samples that he exhibits are of the very finest kind, fully equal to the best production of our State. The wheat costs about 90c. per bushel, and the flour a little less than $6 per bbl. in San Francisco. This gentleman is fully confident that both can be laid down here at a profit, even admitting that prices may materially lecline within the next three or four months

A VERY GRATIFYING REPORT .- The regulations adopted by the Secretary of the Navy for the better enforcement of the passenger ship law have already commenced to tell wonderfully on the comfort and health of emigrants.

We have seen the report for the month of April just passed, during which an aggregate of 9,271 passengers reached the port of New York in twenty-one passenger ships. There were but seven deaths of adults and eight of infants in all the voyages. This is less than one in a thousand of adults, and but very little more than that proportion, indeed, of infants.

LATEST NEWS.

We were complimented this morning with a visit from Hon. W. L. Lee, Chief Justice of the Sandwich Islands. Judge Lee has visited his native country on official business, and is accredited with plenary powers from the Government of the Sandwich Islands to the Government of the United States. He is at the Louisville Hotel, and intends leaving for Washington to-morrow morning.

Dodsworth's Band.—This band will give a land and Toledo 80%, Camberland 26%, Reading 87%, Central third concert to-night, which will be their last 91%, Virginia 6'e 97, Missouri 6's 91%. Dodsworth's Band.-This band will give a in this city. The programme, which will be found in our advertising columns, is rich and varied, and among the pieces we are glad to observe the Casta Diva, by Mr. A. Dodsworth.-To hear this piece alone is worth the price of admission. Of course no lover of music will be willingly absent.

The hall on Saturday night was filled with a large and fashionable audience, who were delighted with the performances.

STEAMBOAT NOTICES .- We are indebted to the attentive officers of the steamers Northerner and Sultana for favors. The Sultana leaves for New Orleans this evening. She is a good boat and has fine accommodations. The Northerner, Capt. Fuller, is the regular packet for St. Louis to-day.

We are indebted to the officers of the R. M. Patton for a manifest.

The steamers Jeannette and Mansfield came nto collision on Friday night above Cincinnati. Neither boat sustained much damge.

On the recent trip of the R. J. Ward from New Orleans, she struck a snag above Flint Island, which damaged her larboard guard.

The steamer Wm. Baird has been purchased by the Government, and is loading at St. Louis with portable cottages. The Baird will take them up the Missouri river, leaving St. Louis on Tuesday. It is supposed that she will convey a letachment of United States troops, now stationed at Newport barracks, to quarsters up the Missouri.

Capt. Williamson has sold the steamer Cuba to Capt. Jas. W. Mills for $12,000, one-half cash. Capt. Mills will hereafter run the Cuba

The steamship Arago, built for the New York and Havre line, made a trial trip on Thursday and performed well. The New York Courier says:

The interesting feature of the trial was the introduction of the "drag-link," to couple the two engines, in place of the centre shaft, which has so often failed in double engines, and occasioned expensive repairs. The drag-link con-nection has been long used with entire success on other forms of engines, and in connection with the oscilating engines seems to complete the great simplicity and directness of action of this form of engine.

The Arago is 300 feet long, 46½ feet beam, 31½ feet depth of hold, and has accommodation for 250 passengers.

POSTMASTER AT NEW ORLEANS .- From a perusal of the testimony in this case, and from information derived from the highest sources in New Orleans, we are satisfied that Mr. Kendall is the victim of a foul conspiracy, and that he will be acquitted by the Court as he already is by the general opinion of his intelligent fellowcitizens. The charge against him almost refutes itself. It is, that after purloining letters from the post-office, containing money, he enclosed the contents to persons familiar with his hand-writing, in letters written by himself, to which great concourse of people. he signed a feigned name, that of Michael Hanson, and did not attempt to disguise the fact that the body of them was written by himself— these letters being addressed to the very persons most likely to take proceedings against him. is the invention of some enemy in the post-office establishment, or acquainted with it, who, after imitating Mr. Kendall's hand-writing, signed the assumed name in the hope of accomplishing his removal, which the Administration hastily decided to make.

Mr. Kendall, as the leader of the Union movement in New Orleans, excited the animosity of the Secessionists, whom he earnestly denounced, and brought upon himself their last-ing enmity. The readiness with which he has been removed is due, perhaps, in part, to their influence with the Administration.

During the first week of the bombardment the English alone fired about 2,200 tons of shot and 500 tons of powder. The total consumption of the Allies for the week amounted to about 6,000 tons of shot and 1,500 tons of powder. The telegraph between London and the Crimea is perfect, except a small portion across the Danube. Dispatches reached the British Government in a few hours, but were not generally communicated to the public, although nightly questions were asked in Parliament as to news. The Ministers declared that they would exercise due discretion in the publication of the

The Vienna negotiations are of course at an end. Lord John Russell has reappeared in his seat in Parliament. He stated the substance of the negotiations and intimated that the protocol would be submitted to Parliament. The latest news from the seat of war says there was a sharp engagement on the night of May 1s', in front and left attack. The whole affair was brilliant for the allies. Paris, May 4.-Reported to-day that on May 2d the besiegers took possession of some impor-tant Russian works after a fierce engagement. On the 3d, the Russians attempted to retake the position, but failed.

Constantinople, May 2.—Lord Strattord de Radcliffe has returned to Constinople. Canrobert speaks to his troops of immediate operations. Orders have been received to prepare to transport.

Before Sebastopol, May 4.—On Wednesday the advance works of quarantine bastion and carried them at the point of the bayonet—taking twelve mortars from the Russians and establish ing themselves in the conquered position. The following night the Russians made a sortie to regain the position, and after a sanguinary encounter were driven back. The British Baltic fleet had left Kiel, and the French fleet was about to sail from Cherburg.

The insurrection in the Ukarine had extended to other governments. Twenty landed proprie tors, with their wives and families, had been destroyed. France.-The Emperor had a narrow escape Trante.—The Emperor had a harrow escape from assassination on the evening of the 28th ult., while on his way to join the Empress in the Champ d'Elysee. The Emperor was ac-companied by two officers of his household, and when near the Barriere de Etole, he was ap-proached by a well dressed man with an action intimating a desire to present a petition. had advanced to within five or six paces of the Emperor, who had not observed him; when he was discovered by a policeman, who, thinking it was his intention to present some document to the Emperor, advanced quietly to inform him that such an act was prohibited. As the policeman was proceeding toward the man, a cart was rapidly driven between them, and in the interval the individual had drawn a pistol, and, aiming point blank at the Emperor, discharged both barrels without effect. He was seized by the policeman, but not until he had drawn another, and made a second attempt to shoot. It is said one ball grazed the Emperor's hat. The would-be assassin is an Italian, named Pianoza, and was a volunteer in Gerribaldi's army. He was in London while the Emperor was making his visit, and would have made the

The Emperor proceeded with his ride and visited the Opera Comique in the evening. He has decided not to receive any formal address of congratulation, though an exception has been made in regard to British residents in Paris, who held a meeting on the 2d, and was largely attended. An address was adopted.

VEGETABLE PHYSIOLOGY-WEEDS .- Mr. W. H. Brewer, of Ovid, N. Y., writes as follows to the Country Gentleman:

Perhaps there is no other item of expense and labor more considerable, in farming opera tions, besides the actual cultivation and securing of crops, than that of killing weeds, those scourges of the finest farming sections of our country—hence something said upon the subject is always in place, even if not new.

There are but three modes practical for their extermination—frequent cutting, rooting them out without he had a place the relief of their cutting and the said of t out, either by the hand or by the plow, or similar instruments, or choking them out with more luxuriant crops. The mode employed must of course be decided by the circumstances of the

All plants (save the lowest orders and some parasitic plants) draw their subsistence, their tood, from two sources, by means of two very different sets of organs: from the soil by means of the roots, and from the air by means of the leaves. Both of these are essential to their well-being, the sap circulating from the one to the other, and any attempt made to kill the plant must be aimed at one or both of these organs. The roots absorb water, and in it are dissolved the various materials found in the soil, the same the various materials found in the soil, the same that are used in building up the vegetable structure, but this sap is not yet ready to perform its ultimate office. It must undergo certain chemical changes, and these must take place in the leaves, under the influence of light and air. A portion of the water is evaporated, the sap becomes thicker, and new substances are formed by the addition of new materials absorbed by by the addition of new materials absorbed by the leaves from the surrounding atmosphere, principally carbon from carbonic acid, and nitrogen from ammonia and perhaps other sources. This sap, thus changed, is ready to perform its office, and nourishes the plant, adding to its growth as it passes down again toward the Every one has noticed the change in the sap of the maple or other trees when the leaves begin to grow in the spring. In many plants, such as the trees and many herbs, the sap pass-es up through the wood (the sap-wood of trees) to the leaves, is then changed, and passes back toward the roots between this wood and the bark. And here the increase of diameter takes place, every year adding a new ring of wood. In other plants, such as canes, grasses, palms, &c., the sap passes both up and back in the interior of the stalk, and here also the increase of diameter takes place. Such plants are destitute of a true bark. The difference of the modes of growth characterizes the two great natural divisions of flowering plants, as described by botanists, but in both cases the relative uses of these organs are the same. The leaves, to perform their peculiar office, have many openings or pores (stomata) in their surfaces, to absorb the necessary gases, and also the dew and at-mospheric moisture, and they present a very surface by their immense numbers, opening their inyriad mouths or pores to catch the desired materials from every passing breeze, purifying our atmosphere at the same time that they minister to their own wants. To perform their office the leaves must be green; they refuse to work when any other color. The colored leaves of autumn, the blanched leaves of plants growing in darkness, and the colored petals of flowers, will not elaborate sap and fit it for use of the vegetable economy. We can judge of of the vegetable economy. We can judge of the luxuriance of any crop by the relative shade of green it assumes. From their relation to the air, leaves have been compared to the lungs of animals, and called the respiratory organs of plants; but the analogy does not hold good in many important particulars, yet they are no less essential to their economy, and we will always kill a plant if we keep it entirely deprived of Jeaves for any considerable length of time.

The ultimate aim of the plant seems to be the perfection of its seeds, and to this end it puts forth all its energies. It is in most vigorous growth at the time of flowering, and many spe-cies, if they be cut at this time, may be effectually killed. They appear not to have strength to put forth fresh leaves. This in a measure appears to be the case with the Canadian this-I have known them nearly exterminated by a single cutting, when they were in the proper stage, that is, when some of the earliest heads were just in flower, but the majority not yet expanded; and this operation, if performed several times, is sure to kill them; the only practicable point is to cut them all and at the right The season, too, appears to make some difference, they being easier killed some years than in others. I have known a man to sell "recipes for the sure killing of Canada thistles" for $10 each, in a district troubled much with these pests, and his secret consisted in cutting them twice a year—the 20th of June and 20th of September. This would kill them entirely, if effectually performed, if not in one year, in tually p two or three. The time should be varied, however, with the season, some being so much earlier than others. All weeds that can be cut. that cannot be got at easily in any other way should be cut two or three times each summer. and there will soon be few left to cut.

But there are many to which this is not applicable, from various circumstances—their size habits, the grains in which they occur, &c Such is the case with such as trail on the ground some that are not killed short of cutting a great number of times, as is the case with some troublseome grasses, and others that grow only in cer tain grains, and are not easily distinguished and separated from them. To these we must apply one of the methods, rooting them out, or choking Some may be easily exterminated before they become too numerous by pulling them by plucking up such occasional plants of suspicious aspect as he may mert with on his farm, even if he does not know that it is a troublesome "weed," for some only become so when very numerous Happy would it be if every farmer was a botanist, to quickly determine and recognize all unusual plants, and a vegetable physiologist, to use the best means for their extermination if such were desirable. Often weeds are not suspected to be such until it is too late to get rid of them For all that it is not practicable to cut plowing, good plowing, or other similar means of stirring the ground, is the way to treat them. In fallow ground, stir it often. Whenever a weed is seen pushing a leaf above the surface, plow or cultivate again; give it no chance at the air, and if the season be a moderately dry one, a single summer is often enough for their effectual exte mination. Some farmers prefer this meth-od to all others in killing Canada thistles. All practical farmers understand this part of the sub-ject, as well as the necessity of having it thor-oughly done, if we would haveit effectual. As oughly done, if we would have the cultivator, the harrow, hoe, &c., there is much difference of opinion among those having any considerable experience, some preferring one thing, and some another, according to the weeds they have been dealing with, the soil in which they grow, and

The last method, "choking" them out (I know no better term than the popular one), is only applicable to some weeds and to some soils, where we can get a cultivated grain with stronger vital power, or having a stronger affinity to the soil than the weed we wish to eradicate, which, by its luxuriant growth, smothers the feebler species and robs them of their necessary means of subsistence. In all highly cultivated forms, many weeds are partially or entirely kept subdued by this method, incidentally to the increased care in cultivation. These three methods combined can always be seen on well managed farms, that have weeds, until they are expelled, and that all must be used, is evident to any one who has studied their habits, and the circumstances of the r growth. Many can only be exterminated by years of labor and care, and even then only by years of labor and care, and even then only by the most unceasing vigilance. Such is the case with the common chess, or cheat (Bromus sea calinus), and we need no stronger proof of the tenacity with which it clings to soils, than the fact that many good and observing farmers en-tertain the belief that it is transmuted wheat! Its seeds will remain in the soil for many years, and yet germinate when exposed to the right influence, and a few seeds germinating will soon seed a large field. I have seen a piece of new land sown with wheat, containing it, where it took ten years of unceasing attention to eradicate it. It would spring up with the grass of pasture land, and with other grains besides wheat, often of the most diminutive size. I have picked spectrum. imens not more than three inches high, bearing a single small spikelet of three or four seeds, which were perfect, and capable of perpetuating the race. Under the most favorable cirating the race. Under the most favorable circumstances this same plant will produce as high as two or three thousand seeds. I have met with an intelligent farmer who says that "he has counted" the latter number on a single plant that sprang up in his garden. Under such circum-stances, is it wonderful that some think it imposget clear of this almost universal p sible to Especially, too, when so many labor under the mistaken idea that its seeds will not grow, and hence take no pains to keep it out of their barn-yard manure. Yet it will yield if properly attended to, as we have abundant proofs and examples.

New Book.

THE Castle Builders, by the anthor of "Hearts' Ease," "The Ileir of Redeliffe," &c. D. Appleton & Co. New York. A simple but beautiful story, told in a simple and beautiful anner. The author studionsly avoids all forced and unnatural incidents, and the equally fashionable affectation of extravagant languags. It is destined to great popularity among all classes of readers, for its sketches of life seem to us at once lively, epirited, pathetie, as well as graceful and vivid. All who read it will become interested in its fascinating pages, and close it with the impression that it is a good book, and deserving of universal popularity.
